

Editorial Note on Journal of Arthritis

Kamal D Moudgil*

Department of Medicine, University of Maryland, USA

Corresponding Author*

Kamal D Moudgil, Professor,
Department of Medicine University of Maryland, USA,
Tel: +410 706-7840;
Email: kmoudgil@som.umaryland.edu

Copyright: 2020 Moudgil KD. This is an open-access article distributed under the terms of the Creative Commons Attribution License, which permits unrestricted use, distribution, and reproduction in any medium, provided the original author and source are credited.

Received 27 Jul 2020; Accepted 03 Jul 2020; Published 31 Aug 2020

Editor Note

Physicians, clinical and medical professionals. The volume of information contained on the journal web-site is contributed by authors from different regions of the world. Due to these reasons readers hailing from diverse professional backgrounds and regions are interested in the journal content. With the continuous guidance of our eminent editors we strive to become the best. The role of an editor is not easy; to paraphrase "An editor's role is not a happy one." Every day our editors are faced with making difficult choices about which articles can be published in the journal and contribute to improving research. Journal of Arthritis is a peer-reviewed scholarly journal of international reputation which reports on the most recent happenings on arthritis starting from its origin, cause, consequences, detailing prevention, cure and arthritis management. The journal reflects on all aspects related to arthritis on open access platform and encourages researchers to file original manuscripts as research articles, review articles, case studies, commentaries, short communication and letters. The journal caters to the needs of a people across the academic, industry and business by carting to practicing orthopedics, surgeons, clinical PR actioners, medical colleges that offers specialized programs on orthopedics, students and researchers, research centres that develop innovative and alternative therapeutic techniques and tools. The journal focuses on varied and broad spectrum of topics related arthritis by focusing on topics including Rheumatoid Arthritis, Osteoarthritis, Knee Arthroscopy, Total Hip replacement, Systemic Lupus Erythematosus (SLE), Ankylosing Spondylitis, Knee Replacement, Synovial Fluid, Joint Replacement, Arthritis Surgery, Temporomandibular Joint Disorder, Fibromyalgia and other relevant fields that meet the general criteria of significance and scientific excellence. The archived content of the journal represents the track of progress made in this field over the past year. The information gathered by the journal functions as resource of refined knowledge for academicians, scientists, we recognize the importance of publication therefore we assess articles on the quality of the research, analysis, data presentation, and writing. All articles must have the approval of the appropriate ethics committee and follow the best research practices. There are several developments during the decade that have been important trends in publication. The rapid increase in the availability and speed of the Internet and mobile communications has been an important contributor to fast publication. Access has now reached into many of the remotest parts of the world to connect with more researchers. We promote our authors work through regular tweets on twitter, Facebook and LinkedIn. We thank all of our authors, editorial board members, reviewers, and staff who have made the past decade successful for the journal. In the next decade, we target to improve on the quality and authenticity of the data published in our journal. We dream of quality papers that address pharmaceutical science needs and are written in English to an international standard. Papers that are of a high scientific and ethical standard with appropriate statistical analysis. Please work with us to achieve our dream and the publish quality research on Arthritis.